The Next Thing to be Done.
Taking it for granted that the proposed railroad from this city will be built, what is the next thing to be done? It is to establish a line of propellers to run twice a week, more or less, between this city and New York, to carry freight in connection with the railroad. It would, we think, be a paying investment, as, taking all things into consideration, the expense of reighting would be much less than by the present mode of sail vessels. It is true wind costs nothing, and steam does; but then the wind cannot always be relied upon like steam, the consequence of which is, as is very frequently witnessed at this port, vessels are detained in harbor by head winds and heavy weather for days and sometimes weeks, during all of which time the men must eat, and their wages are going on, so that the expense of transportation in this instance would be about the same either way—the saving of time would about equally balance the expense of steam, to say nothing of the "dangers of the sea" that would be avoided by landing the freight at Newport instead of taking it by sea to Boston. A railroad connecting this city with Boston, and a line of propellers would be sure to follow.

GERRIT SMITH AND BROWN.—The Syracuse Journal learns from a gentleman who has conversed with Gerrit Smith in regard to the trouble at Harper's Ferry, that he was in no way identified with or privy to Brown's scheme. His explanation of the matter is this:

"Two years ago Mr. Smith, in order to help the free State movement in Kansas, gave Brown a note of about $300, against a man then in Kansas. Brown could not collect the note, so he returned it to Mr. Smith, who agreed to give him, at some future time, cash to the amount of the note. After that he lost sight of Brown until about the first of June last, when he received a letter requesting him to send a draft for a certain amount, $100 we think, payable to the order of another party. Mr. Smith, in compliance with the request and his former promise, promptly forwarded the draft, supposing it was a bona fide firm to whom it was addressed. Mr. Smith says distinctly that he had no knowledge or the least suspicion that Brown was engaged in planning an insurrection."

THE TOMB OF RACHEL.—James Brooks writes to that journal from the Italy Land:

Upon my return to Bethlehem I rode by the tomb of Rachel—a small building, with a whitened dome, and having within it a high, oblong monument, built of brick and stone over. The spot is wild and solitary—and not a tree spreads its shade where rests the beautiful mother of Israel. Christian, Jew, and Moslem, all agree that this is just the spot where Rachel was buried, and all unite in honoring it. The Turks are anxious that their ashes may rest near hers, and hence their bodies have been strewed under tombs all around the simple tomb of Rachel. The sweet domestic virtues of the wife have won their love and admiration, as the tomb of Abraham, near the brook of Kedron, their detestation—upon the latter they throw a stone to mark their horror of the disheveled son, while around the former, they wish when they die, their bodies may be interred. Nor is this wonderful. The wife, worth fourteen years of service as shepherd, must have been a wife worth having. The whole life of Rachel is, indeed, one of the most touching in Biblical history. The sweet shepherdess has left her mark upon the memory of man, as well as her tomb. The tribute to her is the tribute to a good wife—and infidel, Jew and Christian, all combine to pay it. The great women of the earth—the Zenobias and Cleopatras—have died, been buried, and their very place of burial been forgotten; but to this day stands over the grave of Rachel, not the pillar Jacob set up, but a modern monument in its place; around which pilgrims from every land and under the sun gather in respect and reverence for the faithful wife and good mother in Israel.

A few days since, says the N. Y. Post, the president of one of our largest banks called to his presence a clerk filling a responsible post in the bank; and inquired of him where he had spent the previous evening. The clerk in great confusion, acknowledged that he had frequented a place not altogether reputable, whereupon the president notified him that his services were not required another hour. The examination into the private conduct of this young man was induced by the discovery of a deficiency of $200 in his accounts, which was not satisfactory explained.

While Mr. C. S. Hoyt of New Haven, was attempting to fill a lamp from a fluid can, a smaller lighted lamp standing near, Tuesday evening, the can exploded, burning Mr. Hoyt shockingly (though the physician hopes not fatally) and slightly burning his wife and child, as well as burning up the bedding and injuring the furniture.

The Ohio State Journal says:—
"John Brown is the father of two children—a force sufficient, itself, to take Virginia and frighten the slaveholders everywhere. We suppose some of these children were girls, but we don't think that would make any difference. Women would scare the Virginians—'banes in arms' would do it."

At St. Paul, Minn., Luther Preston, convicted of stealing from the mail a letter containing four land-warrants, was sentenced to the penitentiary for fifteen years.

PRESERVATION OF GRAPES.—To preserve grapes in the autumn and winter is an object of much importance. A distinguished French horticulturist, M. Rose Chermieux, gives the following simple recipe in the Journal of Villefranche:—Leave the bunches on the vine as long as the frost will permit, (in his neighborhood, till the end of October. This, of course, must depend on latitude and exposure.) Before they are touched by the frost, cut each bunch with a piece of the branch five or six inches (joint) in length, three or four of the joints above the bunch of grapes. Cover the upper extremity of the twig with grafting wax to prevent the evaporation of the fluids still in the fibrous tissue. Each bunch being thus prepared, the lower extremity of the twig is inserted in a small vial filled with water, to which is added five grammes (a good sized teaspoonful) of pulverized charcoal. In this charcoal lies the entire secret of success. Cover the mouth of the bottle with wax and the preparation is terminated. Then take a narrow strip of board, bore holes in it between three and four inches apart and of a proper size to hold the vials firmly. Attach this rack to the sides of the fruit room and place the vials in it. Care must be taken to cut off the grapes which begin to decay with a pair of scissors, and to keep the temperature of the room above the freezing point. In this way, Chermieux grapes may be preserved in France till May. The method of pruning the vine renders this mode of preserving the grape more feasible in France than in the United States; but in many cases the twigs may be taken off with bunches of grapes without injury to the vines; and the small expense of the vials, rack, &c., can be no objection.

A SLEEPING-CAR INCIDENT.—The Milwaukee News tells the following incident, which was witnessed by a friend in a sleeping car on the Detroit and Milwaukee road. The car was nearly full, and in one of the compartments was a maiden lady, neither fat nor fair, but forty, who was wont to exercise at her close proximity to some naughty men, who were much amused at her nervousness. Looking about her with sidelong glances, and shrugs of disgust, she finally mustered courage to put on her "night cap," which operation was almost too much for her. This feat accomplished, she again cast frightened glances at her surroundings, obviously afraid to proceed further. At this juncture the conductor came in, whom she immediately button-holed, and in a whisper heard in the remotest part of the car, she indignantly interrogated him to know if there were no curtains "in the house." "Certainly, ma'am," said the affable conductor, who hastened to procure some, at which she appeared exceedingly grateful. They were soon drawn, and she proceeded to make herself as comfortable as the nature of the circumstances allowed.

But she was unable to enjoy very little repose, for every new comer in pursuit of quarters, who passed her crib, would inquiringly draw her curtain to see if it was occupied, when a mother's scream would issue forth, which caused an instantaneous dropping of "the rag," when the persecutor would subside for a moment, only to be roused on the arrival of some new place-hunter. As this process continued through the night, amid the occasional guffaws of the spectators, it may be imagined that the poor victim obtained very little repose, and that she internally vowed never to place herself in a like predicament again.

WOMEN AND LADIES.—In the days of our fathers, there were such things to be met with as men and women—but now they are all gone, and in their place a race of gentlemen and ladies, or, to be still more refined, a race of "ladies and gentlemen" has sprung up. Women and girls are among the things that were. But "ladies" are found everywhere. Miss Martineau, wishing to see the women-wards in a prison in Tennessee, was answered by the warden: "We have no ladies here at present, madam." Now, so far as the ladies were concerned, it was very well that none of them were in prison; but it then sounds a little odd—ladies in prison! It would seem bad enough for women to go to such a place.

A lecturer, discoursing upon the characteristics of women, illustrated thus: "Who were the last at the cross? Ladies." On this modern improvement, we have heard of but one thing that beats the above. It was the finishing touch to a marriage ceremony, performed by an exquisite divine up to all modern improvements. When he had thrown the chain of Hymen around the happy couple, he concluded by saying: "I now pronounce you husband and lady." The audience stuffed their handkerchiefs into their mouths, and got out of the room as quick as possible, to take breath.

THE VALUE OF STORIES.—A gentleman who acted as private secretary and amanuensis for Prescott, the historian, gives some extremely interesting particulars in relation to the habits of a remarkable man. He was as regular in his movements as clock work, and among his invariable habits was that of listening every day of his life, for the space of an hour, to some story or tale, read to him by his wife or his secretary; he needed this kind of mental refreshment as a relief from his grave study of the matter-of-fact histories which he worked, as much as he needed sleep or exercise in the open air. And what he required, every mind requires. Stories, therefore, are necessary to the preservation and improvement of the human intellect as any other kind of literary exercise. It is only the thoughtless and unphilosophical who speak of stories with contempt. They are to the sober realities of the earth what flowers are to the vegetable world. Roses and violets are as important to economy of the universe as are the oaks and cedars. The story writer, therefore, is not to be held in less esteem than the author of ponderous volumes of history or dissertations of philosophy and political economy. Each has its sphere, and is entitled to respect according to the degree of ability with which he fulfills the duty which his talents qualify him to discharge.

The disinterested manipulators of John Brown's correspondence perpetrated a very shabby fraud in altering the letter in which an allusion was made to a "J. R. G." (Joshua R. Giddings), to make it appear that he had taken "stock" in the Harper's Ferry "Seize" to the amount of $300, when in fact he had simply contributed $3 to Mr. Brown, without the slightest knowledge of his plans! If there is any baser way of manufacturing party capital than this, we have never heard of it.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 28.
MR. GIDDINGS'S ADDRESS.—Hon. Joshua R. Giddings delivered an address in this city this evening on the general subject of slavery, touching on the Harper's Ferry affair as an incident thereof. After alluding to the predictions of many eminent men, thus, Jefferson, John Quincy Adams and others, that the deliverance must come, he said:—"I deplore the loss of human life as deeply as any man. I can never look upon human suffering unmoved; and yet I would not ask for the slave nor for the master, nor for Brown, nor for his fellow prisoners, anything more nor less than justice. Most of Brown's companions are dead, at least the most fortunate of them have departed. The others will soon follow. Their sad fate will occupy a brief page in the history of our nation. Those who yet survive seem to have anticipated the result, and are now waiting for its consummation." Mr. Giddings then likened their case to that of Decatur and his followers in their attempted capture of the frigate Philadelphia in the harbor of Algiers. In the effort to serve their country they died; not one returned. Their plan was ill-conceived, it failed; but their motive was sublime, and we honor their memories.

The Lancaster (Pa.) Union tells a good story of the President. It seems that Mr. Buchanan, on the train which lately bore him from Lancaster to Columbia, on his way to Washington, became interested in a brakeman, who was something of a wag, and made up his mind to "do something" for him. On the arrival of the train at Columbia, Mr. Buchanan accosted the brakeman, when the following dialogue took place:

Mr. Buchanan—"Young man, are you employed on this train?"
Brakeman—"Yes, Sir."
Mr. Buchanan (patronizingly)—"How would you like to have a situation at the White House?"
Brakeman (mischievously)—"Old man, your time is too short!"
Mr. Buchanan made tracks for the bridge.

ADMITTED TO THE BAR.—It was formerly the custom for those applying for license to practice law in Mississippi, to be examined by the presiding Judge of the Circuit Court. On a certain occasion, Mr. M— applied to Judge G— for examination, and it so happened that his Honor was then in a little town where they had just passed the Maine Law, and being especially fond of old rye, was in quite a quandary as to how to obtain it. When M— applied, putting on a look of terrible import, and keeping the poor fellow in agony for half an hour, he asked Mr. M—:

"Do you think you could get me a bottle of good whiskey?"
"Yes, sir," said M—
"Well, get it," said the Judge.
The whiskey was brought. Walking up and down the room for some time, Judge G— said:
"Mr. M—, will you drink with me?"
"Yes, sir."
They drank. The Judge resumed his walk, M— in horrid suspense.
"Mr. M—, will you take another drink?"
"Yes, sir!"
Again the Judge walked and looked at M—, and said:
"M—, I have one question to ask you; if you answer it, you are passed. Were you ever drunk?"
"Yes, Judge, I reckon a thousand times!"
"You are admitted, sir."

A CARD TO THE LADIES.

DR. DUBONCA'S GOLDEN PILL for Females. Perfectly harmless, yet wonderfully and powerfully efficacious in restoring regularity, and removing all obstruction from whatever cause.

All medical men know, as well as many others, that no female can enjoy good health, unless she is regular; and whenever an obstruction takes place, whether from exposure, cold, or any other cause, the general health begins immediately to decline, and the want of such a remedy has been the cause of so many complaints among young females. Headache, Pain in the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, Loss of Food, and Disturbed Sleep, are most always signs of the obstruction of the system; and whenever that is the case, the Pills will invariably remedy all these evils; and may always be used successfully as a preventive.

Price $1 per box. For sale at 132 Thames street, corner Church street, and at 12 Washington Square, opposite late House. Order for the trade so as to be supplied at lowest wholesale prices. Ladies by mail, enclosing $1 to W. H. WILSON, Box 801, Newport Post Office, can have the Pills sent confidentially by mail to any part of the city or country.

SPANISH GOLDEN MIXTURE.

FOR FEMALES.

THIS elegant vegetable compound has been used by the Spanish ladies, for years, in curing the derangements of the female system, and for improving the general health and beautifying the complexion. It is a warming, stimulating and tonic cordial; enriching and purifying the blood, quickening the circulation, improving the eyes, and a clearness and freeness to the complexion not attainable by any other means.

IT As a Female Medicine it has no equal. It will remove female obstructions when all other remedies have failed, and a few doses taken for one week before the monthly period will prevent all obstructions from any cause whatever. This may seem incredible, but try it. If it fails in any case the price will be returned. Sent to any part of the country. Price $4.00 per bottle.

Sold by AMOS PALMER, M. D., chemist and apothecary, (successor to Andrew Barrett), No. 213 Westminster st., Providence, who is sole agent; the genuine to be had only at his store. Newport, HAZARD & CASWELL, my 28-dw 1y.
